

Dr. Sashana Gordon

Area of Practice

Obstetrician & Gynecologist (OBGYN)

Education & Experience

Undergraduate: Purdue University

Medical School: Indiana University School of Medicine

Residency Training: TriHealth OBGYN Residency Program

Practice: TriHealth Women's Services Rookwood

Dr. Gordon received the "TriHealth Patient Care Award" in 2015, and is a member of the Cincinnati Medical Association, American Medical Association and American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. She participates in various community engagement through Cradle Cincinnati and in her care of patients from primarily lower socioeconomic communities.

Why is women's leadership important in healthcare?

Women are a strongly influential part of society. If I am being honest, it is truly my belief that women are the cornerstone of society, as they are in their families; wearing many hats and multi-tasking while succeeding in their careers.

Their unique, yet broadly identifiable experiences are what makes them pertinent parts of any leadership structure, especially in healthcare where their experiences bring a lot of information to the forefront about the healthcare needs of all members of the family. The viewpoint and experiences that women bring to the leadership table in healthcare is what allows us to optimize our resources in providing quality healthcare to the surrounding communities.