Jeremiah Kirkland

President & Chief Operating Officer
Bethesda Butler Hospital
McCullough-Hyde Memorial Hospital

Jeremiah Kirkland is the President and Chief Operating Officer of Bethesda Butler Hospital and McCullough-Hyde Memorial Hospital. He also serves as Senior Executive for TriHealth Women's Services.

Since joining TriHealth in 2018 as Executive Director for Women's Services, Kirkland has excelled in progressively more responsible leadership roles, including Director of Operations for Bethesda North Hospital; Interim Chief Diversity Officer; and President and COO of Good Samaritan Hospital at Evendale. He was appointed President & COO of Bethesda Butler in 2022 and of McCullough-Hyde in 2024.

Prior to joining TriHealth, Kirkland served as a senior administrator at Strong Memorial Hospital, the medical center of the University of Rochester. Before leading at Strong Memorial Hospital, he worked for 14 years at Rochester General Hospital, the flagship of the Rochester Regional Health System in New York.

Kirkland received a bachelor's degree in health care administration from State University of New York-Brockport, and he earned a master's in health administration from Roberts Wesleyan College in Rochester. He is also board certified in health care management through the American College of Healthcare Executives and also completed the Business Certificate Program from Harvard University. He has a passion for partnering with people in the community he serves and working with clinical teams to improve population health.
